

This book is a series of short stories about people we know in this reality and how they may have turned out in some alternate reality. Most of us are now aware that the universe is a strange beast at the quantum level. Particles can be in more than one place at any time and may act like particles (quanta) one minute, I use that term loosely, and like waves the next. This strange world opens the possibility that alternate realities that are initially similar to ours, bud off the reality that we are aware of and that we may never interact with those realities. With a little imagination, why not. Mother Teresa a bank robber? Simon and Garfunkel, musical serial killers? Justin Bieber a rock star? Yasser Arafat the messiah? Yes I like it. And just for good measure some Fairy Tales that we might read to our kids in this reality. Tighten your seatbelt for a journey of mayhem and discovery and let your imagination loose. Fans of Black Sabbath, Led Zeppelin and Bob Seger or any music of that era will appreciate the humor. My apologies to fans of Simon and Garfunkel, Mother Teresa and anyone else that they could see as being maligned in this book including Justin Bieber, but keep in mind, this is an alternate history and is no reflection on these people in our history.

In one reality, you're already reading this. In another you're a bear. Directed by Amir Valinia. With Tom Sizemore, Christopher Judge, Elle LaMont, Donny Boaz. John Rotit is a happy, content man with a loving wife. Hours later. Alternate realities are worlds that exist next to, in parallel of, or in place of our own. Yes I think that alternate realities do exist. In quantum mechanics there is a concept called quantum superposition which basically says that when the observer is.
