

The information in this book was obtained through a personal "automatic writing" session. Automatic writing derived over time from the concept of "free association" writing used in psychoanalysis as first developed by Sigmund Freud. Yet its roots date back to the early "stream of consciousness" concept found in early Buddhist scriptures. More recently, it was used extensively during meditation by renowned author Ruth Montgomery as a means of documenting whatever information was received during the meditation, including inspired perspectives and even comprehensive discussions. ALL DIVINELY INSPIRED INFORMATION IS CHanneled INFORMATION; otherwise, where would information and spiritual guidance about life beyond the physical world come from? Many trained spiritualists, authors, artists, etc. are perfectly capable of channeling the highest source(s) of information and receiving divine inspiration. In November of 1998, I was nearing the end of the research phase for another book, and I was seeking something which served as the core of all the spiritual, religious and philosophical concepts which I had explored. I placed myself into a deep meditative state consistent with the approach commonly used for semi-detached automatic writing "the optimum state to minimize filtering (bias) and to purify the information received through the gateway of the unconscious mind. The channeled information" which has been carefully preserved in the pages of this book "embraces the most positive aspects about our personal relationship with the Divine Creator. Nothing I might add in the pages of a book would achieve the same level of divine perfection and inspiration; and nothing more needed to be said. Yet there remained the question of how to turn something so simple and relatively brief into a book that could speak to people all over the world in their own language. The answer again came instantly: "include the translations in the same book." And so I did! Through the generous time and efforts of a very special multi-lingual friend who provided the translations herein, this book finally accomplishes my objective of more than ten years to bring the channeled words of the Universal Presence to your heart. In so doing, I go to that well one more time and ask again for assistance: please help all those who are seeking the information herein to truly listen with their hearts. This is Volume 9 of a 12-volume series: This volume contains the original English version plus the Serbian (Cyrillic) translation; Volume 1 contains all 11 languages; Volume 2 contains the original English version only.
